Police: Benefits will improve, too has expanded its geographic scope of recruitment for new officers well beyond Central Florida, going throughout the state to look for officers.

"We are now competing locally and regionally for qualified applicants," Miller said. "Our recruiters are traveling the state to visit academies where we used to be able to find all our applicants locally."

Miller said those benefits he mentioned are often the difference between a candidate choosing Apopka or another agency.

"My point is with our benefits, we used to pump our chest a little bit here in Apopka about where we were with our benefits, but these other municipalities and governments, they're surpassing us now. We need to take a look at those," Miller said. "Every now and then we need to take a look at where we are and where we're trying to get to."

The City Council will set the final budget for the entire city at two public hearings in September and it will be effective on October 1.

and marched in them.

Some schools are able to easily fundraise for items like this because they have the resources or large alumni associations to help.

Wekiva has neither so this became a struggle since one band uniform can cost around $450 with a total cost of around $70,000.

Between the school's principal, Dr. Drayton, the help of Superintendent Jenkins, the amazing band director Mr. Grossnicklaus, several key community members, and some very dedicated band parents, we were able to finally completely fund the purchase of new uniforms.

The Marching Mustangs will look great when they march onto the football field in the regular season opening game at home on August 26 against Olympia High. It's always great when a long-term project comes to fruition. But short-term projects are fun, too.

I also received a very sweet postcard in the mail this week from Jacey Foster, a local high school student whose mom reached out to me in the spring.

Her daughter had been accepted into a very prestigious writing program this summer in New York City but she couldn't afford all of the tuition and air fare to get her there. With the help of more community members, we were able to provide the extra funding needed for Jacey.

The postcard from New York was a special treat and to read about Jacey describing her educational opportunity and experience as incredible makes me proud to be able to help and more importantly, to live in a community that helps our kids when they need it.

Spouse: Base is full retirement age ity" online account, which is easy to do at www.ssa.gov/myaccount.

When your wife fills out the application for her benefits, she will be able to identify you as her spouse, and she should use the "Remarks" section of the application to emphasize that she wishes to receive her spousal benefits as well.

Just for your awareness, your wife's spousal benefit will be based on your full retirement age (FRA) benefit amount, not your age 70 amount, and if she claims at age 65, her benefits will be reduced because she hasn't yet reached her own full retirement age (which is 66 years and 4 months if she was born in 1956).

Your wife's personal benefit will be reduced by .56 percent for each month earlier than her FRA that she claims, and her spousal boost will be reduced by .694 percent for each month earlier than her FRA she claims. So, if your wife claims her benefit before her full retirement age, her payment will be less than 50 percent of your FRA benefit amount.

Hayden: Choices must be made to the rest of the world. It is amazing to me that so many people can find so much wrong in this great nation and, yet, people are willing to endanger their lives and the lives of their children to cross our borders illegally. Even with this administration's open borders, there is still much danger to overcome. And they still come!

Where did the morality and national integrity go? At one time, we were looked at as a guide for better government because we exhibited morality and our allies could trust us to do what we promised. We showed integrity in our dealings because we had a standard we used for right and wrong. It was not based on situational morality – it was based on what the Bible said.

The Ten Commandments were looked upon as a guide for national behavior as well as individual activity. In Genesis, we see how Adam and Eve gave up their perfect lives because they wanted to rule their own destinies. They had the choice for total freedom by following God's commandment given to Adam, "You shall not eat of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil: For in the day that you eat of it you shall surely die."

Along came the serpent that told Eve, "For God does know that in the day ye eat of it, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil."

The world tells us today that we have the power to decide our own futures without God, the Creator of heaven and earth. The real sin of Adam and Eve was not wanting to know between good and evil because they knew good from evil. The sin was in deciding themselves what was good and what was evil. That is what the world is about today, we do not want to follow the commandments of any authority, much less God's. We will decide what is good or bad, and anything goes. What is good for you may not fit my description of good and my definition of bad may not fit your situation or liking, so, we go in any direction and we decide what is best.

Self is in control. We have hyphenated words like self-esteem, self-awareness, self-guidance, and all the others that put self in first place. Since Roe vs. Wade was made the law of the land in 1973, more than 60 million helpless babies have been killed in the one place they should have been protected and safe – the mother's womb!

Guess what got in the way of the birthing of those babies?

You have it – it's not convenient for me!

We need to restore the standards God set for our proliferation and protection. It is time to restore common sense, decency, morality, and integrity to our lives, and Jesus Christ said, "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life: no man comes unto the Father, but through me." Now we know the problem, but better yet, we know the Way to correct it!
